It's easy to see how the 43 sparkling crystal chandeliers overhead embody the grandeur of Highball, but the gorgeous gate you passed through as you entered tells a story all its own. Handcrafted in 1890, the one-of-a-kind, 1,300-pound piece holds a unique history, making its way to Highball from an architectural salvage company in Philadelphia. The antique gate was originally installed at the historic Church Missions Building in Manhattan, a building that remains on the National Historic Registry. Note the impeccable craftsmanship and exquisite scrollwork that has survived decades to grace our entryway, and enjoy the splendor that is Highball.
